1 . PRESENTATION

Artcore is a visual arts charity working within communities locally, nationally and internationally. It endeavours to operate as a cultural hub; fuelling active engagement for a diverse range of communities in Derby, East Midlands and beyond. Artcore's long-term objective is to use arts and crafts as a vehicle to strengthen community cohesion, educate, raise awareness and provide a platform for development. Through its work it is committed to bringing change into the lives of people of all ages, abilities, cultural and ethnic backgrounds through creative activities. The focus is the provision of a contemporary, innovative and quality service through the four core areas: 'art in education and learning', 'art in modern culture', 'art in health and well-being', and 'art in the community'. Artcore supports participants as they develop their skills in a range of visual art mediums and techniques. As well as developing transferable skills such as time keeping, organisation, planning and communication. Artcore also provides a platform to implement the learning through volunteering and work experience opportunities in its different projects.

2 . OBJECTIVE

Borrowing the name from eco-philosopher Timothy Morton who calls out the effect of humans on our planet, Artcore invites artists to apply to We are Asteroid. A two months residency for artists to provoke, bring attention to and develop future scenarios as an urgent response to climate change.

As scientists warn us of the consequences of our human impact on the environment, the arts help us visualise the costs of climate change and natural catastrophe, eliciting emotional responses that prompt action. By looking to the past, we can understand historical examples of conflict and climate and the unintended consequences brought about by attempts to mitigate the effects of global warming.

By drawing on the concepts that have emerged from environmentalism, this We are Asteroid residency asks artist to respond to:

-How climate change has been reflected in increasingly urgent artistic responses?

- How visual art might affect opinion on climate change?

- What artists do in order to translate global issues (including climate change) into artistic visions?

- What are the opportunities that climate change could bring our way? How can we be ready?

For two months Artcore will be an incubator of ideas for artists to challenge, inform and engage audiences through their works on the environment and what long term actions can create the conditions for change to happen.

We are Asteroids is part of a long-term residency programme throughout 2019-2020 that will give 8 selected artists the opportunity to access free studio space where they can create their artworks. Artists will work in pairs so that opportunity for discussion, interaction is available rather than working in isolation. Each artist will be given a bursary and a mentor to work with, will have access to our library and wi-fi network, and participate as observer/facilitator in any of our art-based community activities if they so wish.

At the end of the Residency programme, an exhibition of their works will be held at Artcore. Local and national advertising and marketing support will also be provided. E-catalogues will be produced to support the exhibitions. Artcore will offer encouragement and support to selected artists by facilitating an Artist's Blog for those artists interested in exploring this dynamic medium to take their art to the world.

Artcore is very well-situated, close to the City Centre, and easily accessible by public transport. During the course of the Residency, Artcore will hold Artists' Talks, interactions with curators and art professionalc and so on as an initiative towards a proactive environment for contemporary art in Derby.

3 . CANDIDATES/ PARTICIPANTS

We welcome applicants working in any discipline and with a cross-disciplinary approach to their practice, to occupy Artcore studios. Specifically, Artcore is looking for :
